BAMO Appoints Two Principals

June 23, 2017

International design practice BAMO has announced the appointment of Anne Wilkinson and Billy Quimby as principals in the San Francisco office.

Wilkinson, an LEED-accredited New York native, received her degree in design and environmental analysis from Cornell University. Her portfolio spans the globe, with her most recent undertaking, the Four Seasons Hotel in Sao Paulo, set to debut in 2018. Her designs for the Capella Bangkok hotel along the Chao Phraya River will open in the near future. Other major projects include the Peninsula Chicago and Four Seasons Hotels in Bora Bora, Carmelo, Houston, and Milan.

Also a graduate of Cornell, Quimby boasts more than 20 years in the industry as a registered architect. His work on the Four Seasons Resort Dubai at Jumeirah Beach received the 2015 Gold Key Award.

BAMO principals Gerry Iur and Michael Booth say of both Wilkinson and Quimby, "They have consistently put what's best for the office in terms of office standards and design first. The principals trust them. We trust them. This represents an exciting journey forward for BAMO, which includes some fresh thinking and ideas."
