The beginning of the collection laid Conti carpet. The architect was inspired by the details of the facade of La Monnaie, the Mint in Paris, where money was minted from the year 864: according to Barnes, the decor of Conti resembles a giant gold coin.

The carpets in the collection are notable for their brevity of the design, which, as the author says, is “a series of deviations, changes, simplifications and reductions, so that you get an abstract design, reminiscent of the work of the artist Theo van Dusborg and the legacy of the De Stijl movement”.

Five carpets from the Personnalités collection are made to order in cotton and jute. Narrow panels are woven by hand on jacquard machines of the XIX century, and then, also manually, sewn into wider canvas. An alloy of classics and modernity, this collection opens a new chapter in the catalog of the French studio.
